How to protect your AV equipment from theft, vandalism and damage

By Jade Leopoldo

Audio visual equipment can be a target for theft and vandalism, not to mention vulnerable to accidental damage by students or staff. Whether it be a projector, wall control panel or speakers, we offer some simple yet effective measures listed below to help protect your equipment.

Ceiling Mounts:
 By mounting your projector on the ceiling with the use of a bracket, you will be able to keep the projector out of reach of curious students and conceal cables within the bracket to ensure not only a neat finish but also assurance that none of the cables are damaged.

Security Cages:
 Installing your projector into a special high security cage mount will keep any potential thief at bay as they would have to be well equipped to remove the LCD/DLP projector from the classroom. Cages such as the security cage are extremely strong and are locked using padlocks.

Secure Racks & Cabinets:
 Installing an AV wall rack will provide protection for items such as DVD/VCR's, control panels, amplifiers, wireless microphone equipment plus a whole host more. Anixter wall racks in particular come in a solid steel construction, complete with lockable Perspex door and ventilation. They come in a range of sizes, small, medium and large to fit a multitude of your equipment!

Floor Boxes:
 Floor boxes are a great means to keep control panels, computer inputs and VGA and data points safe and out of the prying hands of unauthorised users. When they are left exposed and wall mounted, control panel screens can be accidentally damaged or buttons pressed repeatedly, causing equipment to go into meltdown. With a wall box such potential dilemmas are eliminated.

Alternatively a floor box may also be installed. Floor boxes feature a lid which when closed conceals all cables inside, and ensures a safe environment for students and teachers alike as a removable lid in the floor avoids having cables running along floors from walls creating trip hazards and leaving items open to easy damage.

Kensington Locks:
 If your projector is placed on an AV trolley, rather than ceiling mounted, we recommend purchasing a Kensington lock for the projector to prevent unauthorized removal. Most projectors have a slot somewhere on the data projector that is designated for a Kensington lock. Attaching a lock to the projector and securing it to the trolley will eliminate the potential for theft. In addition, it may save your projector from falling and being damaged if the cart is accidentally bumped.

For more information on how you can protect your AV equipment from theft, vandalism and damage contact a D.I.B Solutions Consultant today on (03) 9457 4800.
